Calma is an independent outdoor furniture brand founded in 2009. Where we're from, calma (meaning "calm" in Spanish and Catalan) is a way of life. We believe in responsible design, producing timeless objects meant to be enjoyed with calma.

*Empordà born and bred.
We live the outdoors with calma.*

---

Sun, sea, the rocky coastline and the northerly tramuntana winds. The Empordà surrounds us. Inspired by its natural beauty, local craftsmanship and the character of its people. The objects we produce reflects the love for our land.

Know-how. Craftsmanship. Calma.

We entrust local manufacturers to produce our products. Craftspeople that understand making and tradition more than anyone else. Masters of craft that make their mark on and embed their knowledge into every single one of our products.

*Trends are stressful.

---

We reject throwaway design and object to fads and trends. We believe in responsible design, producing outdoor furniture that is incomparable, original and stands the test of time. Our responsibility is to create products that are uniquely Calma, reviving much-loved masterpieces and curating new collections by leading designers that inspire us.

The soul of Calma.

Calma is led by a team of multidisciplinary professionals passionate about design and united in their dedication to simplicity, comfort and beauty.

Alat modular lounge sofa

A sofa of titanic proportions.

Monumental and Monolithic. “Alat” which means “winged” in Catalan, takes basic geometric cues from brutalism, giving it a heavy appearance and a feeling of robustness that contrasts with the visual lightness of the lateral wings.

Alat fuses the sofa with the archetypal lounge, making it useful as both while defining itself as something totally reimagined.

A lounging collection

Solid but light, rigid but free, Marea (meaning “tide” in Spanish) is a seating collection defined by delicate balance and duality. Co-designed by Andreu Carulla and Joe Doucet, it embodies each designer’s particular design approach in a singular piece of furniture. Available both as a swing and as an armchair, the seat structure is in both cases suspended, giving it a gentle back-and-forth movement just like the tide of the ocean.

Coqueta

A woven wicker armchair

Calma has rescued one of Spain's great design classics for its new collection. Bestowed with a Gold Delta Award in 1988, the country's most coveted design award, the Coqueta chair by Pete Sans is both a carefully balanced and a radical piece of design. A milestone in the history of Spanish design, a basket-weave seat is suspended from its seamless stainless steel structure, all of which is held together with its most identifiable detail: a buckled belt which spans the length of the chair.

Relaxed soft-furniture collection

Lou is the result of the first collaboration between the studio of Inma Bermúdez and Calma. The collection comprises three pieces: a pouf, a lounge chair and a sofa. We like to call them “soft” furniture. The seat cushion is made from various layers of viscoelastic, making it remarkably comfortable. When removed during the winter months, Lou still retains a sculptural appearance due to its delicately light wire frame.

Bolet

Glazed ceramic outdoor stool

Bolet is both an exercise in functionalism and an ode to craftsmanship. The geometry of Bolet is achieved with a simple transformation to the clay extrusion process. Making it useful as both a stool and occasional side-table. Fired at a high heat, it is able to withstand extreme changes in temperature making it ideal for both indoor and outdoor use. Dip-glazed in traditional La Bisbal colours, the hardness of its material is softened with a generous natural cork base and three holes on top provide a convenient way of moving it with ease.
